The World Goes Round
A Real Flying Boat

By Arthur Brisbane
THOSE NOT YOUNG remember a tall comedian of the Billie Russell era singing: "The world goes round just the same, and we've only got ourselves to blame."
Lillian Russell and the tall comedian are gone, but the world still goes around, and we still have ourselves to blame, our hatreds, jealousies, selfishness. It is doubtful that the Lord made us in His own image; the Bible says no, but we have changed.

In India, five bombs, in working order, are found in a first-class railroad carriage. Someone wanted to kill the British viceroy.

We have had our own bombs in America lately, with post-office employees killed because somebody objects to Mussolini's government, 3000 miles away.

On Long Island, volunteer firemen are accused of arson, some confessing that they started blazes for the "thrill" of fighting them. International blazes have been started in the past with the same motive.

Each day, tucked away in its little news corner, you read of the latest suicide that "surprises friends and relatives." The story tells of a man, usually past middle age, who, after working hard and accumulating enough, has decided to get more by gambling. Sometimes he telephones to his daughter what he intends to do, his wife being gone, and his balance wheel gone. Then he blows out his brains, jumps out of a window, or otherwise carries out his plan.

Many men with courage to build up a fortune haven't the courage to endure losing it.

Japan, whose general, Honjo, has a face as powerful as Hitler's, goes marching ahead and takes the Chinese city of Shanghai. It is impossible to have a little north of Port Arthur, on the Gulf of Chihli, except where the Great Wall comes down to the sea, and inside of the wall, China can't like that, nor will Russia.

The day may come when all western Europe will look upon Russia as the real "Great Wall" between Europe and Asia.

Russian hatred of Asiatics and of slanting eyes is older than history.

The very financiers of Europe—American, too—now pray for Russia's bankruptcy, may some day find Russia's bankruptcy may be their own protection, anyway, for their own protection.

Many buildings in Rockefeller City, that John D. Rockefeller, Jr., is erecting, with squares, towers, parks and trees on roofs, in the heart of New York, will include a "Great Wall" Building.

Anxious not to compete with other buildings, which began after Rockefeller City was started, Mr. Rockefeller has sent agents abroad, to create new non-competitive houses.

The British building, at 5th ave. and 60th st., in British quarters for British financial and industrial concerns in New York, will try to carry the British coat of arms, under the management of Baron Rothschild.

You know that he is British when you read his full name, Sir Francis John Stephens Ross, Wood, P. C. O., G. C. S. I., G. C. V. O., K. C. S. I. The honor of the whole world is put in his initials. He is only John D. S. O.

But the last two, meaning Standard Oil, are equal to as many others.

One scientist of the Netherlands has come within a fraction of creating the "absolute zero" temperature. That was announced yesterday. Today, you read that Holland is about to build the biggest flying boat that ever was, twice the size of Germany's D-XX.

A ship will have 10 motors, totaling 10,000 horsepower, each motor driving three propellers. The boat, weighing 100 tons, is expected to carry a 45-ton load, 100 miles an hour.

The boat, weighing 100 tons, is expected to carry a 45-ton load, 100 miles an hour.

Lloyd George is back in England, after a walk trip to the East Indies. His daughter calls his improvement "marvelous."

Improvement in the health of British finance might be also amazing if the British knew enough to use Lloyd George's intellect for their salvation.

He financed the Great War for England, for France and other countries that England supplied with money, and supplied ammunition.

He then took charge of everything as Prime Minister, and, with Clemenceau, won the war.

Clemenceau is dead, after enduring from his nation his ingratitude as republicans know how to manifest.

The British, almost a republic, while giving a good imitation of Republican ingratitude, should let Lloyd George try to do for them what he has done for themselves.

They showed inability to do for themselves.

Dad, 80, Who Licked 2, No Spinach Fan

"Eat my spinach? No! I don't eat spinach. I don't eat vegetables and never did. I eat natural and live for breakfast."

William R. Hatchelder, 81 years old, came the eighth day of next August, by "gerry"—was back on his East Bridgewater farm milking the cows today, proving to the satisfaction of the community in general and his two rugged sons in particular that he was still the boss.

Hatchelder knocked out his sons, William L., 45, and Chester, 40, Wednesday night when they came home "all coked up" and began an argument over whether they should listen to jazz or old-timers on radio.

The talk, lanky father didn't want any music and said it with both fists, after which he turned the sons over to the police and went to court for a suspended sentence.

Word that another "Poppy" had been uncovered in the neighborhood farmer spread through the countryside and brought a host of inquiries as to how he had kept his head.

A Boston Evening American reporter found the aged farmer out in the barn today feeding his stock, and learned he did not read the "Poppy" comic and had no aspiration to Schmelling's crown.

"It was just a little encounter," Hatchelder dominated the incident. "Everything's all right now. The boys are back home, there's no hard feeling and when I don't think about what 'Poppy' says about spinach, I never eat any vegetables at all excepting what I get when they grow a lot of 'em. I don't drink, no."

He was a Boston farmer for 45 years. He was born in Bath, Me. He'd keep on healthy.

Well, I saw a lot of wood. I can stick to a saw in the woods all day.

"But? No, I eat natural and live for breakfast but I don't eat any spinach. I don't care any thing about what 'Poppy' says about spinach. I never eat any vegetables at all excepting what I get when they grow a lot of 'em. I don't drink, no."

Whom Did Governor Roosevelt Have in Mind?

Governor Franklin Roosevelt delivered his message Wednesday to the Legislature of New York.

In it he declares that the country needs "leadership broad enough to understand the problems not only of our nation, but of their relationship to other nations; the problems not of New York alone, but of all the 47 other States; the problems not of the cities alone, but of the small communities and rural districts as well—a leadership practical, sound, courageous and alert."

Governor ROOSEVELT describes our problems as "NATIONAL IN SCOPE" and asserts that it is impossible to solve them "without leadership and a plan and action by our NATIONAL GOVERNMENT."

Governor Roosevelt is emphatically right. The country's problems are NATIONAL in scope and can only be solved by our NATIONAL government.

PRESIDENT HOOVER has given the country no leadership at all, unless you can dignify as leadership his unconstitutional agreement upon a moratorium for the benefit of foreign nations, his advocacy of the further reduction of European debts to this country for the benefit of the European debtors, his persistent endeavor to project the United States into the League Court to further involve us in foreign entanglements, and his efforts to destroy the army and navy, our national defense, at a time when all nations hate us and some—like Japan—openly insult us.

If that is leadership, it certainly is not the sound and courageous leadership which Governor Roosevelt demands.

BUT the President is only the executive branch of government.

Congress, the legislative branch, is the more important branch and John N. Garner, speaker of the Democratic House of Representatives, and by virtue of his pre-eminent national position necessarily the leader of the national Democratic party, is exactly the kind of man, in exactly the kind of place, to give Governor Roosevelt the kind of national leadership which he desires.

THE Congress of the United States has to deal with the problems not only of our nation, "but of their relationship to other nations," and John N. Garner, for 20 years a Congressman and now Speaker of the House of Representatives, will deal with these problems wisely and patriotically.

The Congress has to deal with the problems "not of New York alone but of all the other 47 States" and the Democratic party, under the leadership of John N. Garner, will deal with these problems intelligently and sympathetically.

The Congress has to deal with the problems "not of the cities alone but of the small communities and rural districts as well" and John N. Garner, Representative of just such a district, will deal with their grave problems considerably and understandingly.

Governor ROOSEVELT is astonishingly and unselfishly right when he says that our problems are "NATIONAL IN SCOPE" and that it is impossible to solve them "without leadership and a plan of action by our NATIONAL GOVERNMENT."

Absolutely right is Governor Roosevelt, for Congress is the most important part of our NATIONAL GOVERNMENT and John N. Garner, Speaker of the Democratic House of Representatives, has the required plan and position and will provide inspiring AMERICAN leadership and vigorous AMERICAN outlook brightening.

BIG SUM PAID TO SO OF PERU'S EX-LEADER

Total Profits Made by the New York Bankers on Foreign Loans Near 100 Millions

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—The Senate finance committee was told today of the payment by a New York banking house of a $415,000 commission to a son of former President Leguia of Peru for promoting $100,000,000 of loans.

Profits resulting to the Senate finance committee by New York bankers in the sale of foreign securities today reached the $100,000,000 mark.

Frederick Strauss of J. & W. Seligman Co. testified his firm had made gross profit of $121,250 from the sale of foreign bonds since the war.

Previous witnesses, representing seven companies, have testified to total profits of $2,298,677 to their firms.

These profits did not include gains from the sale of foreign securities through participation in the war.

Only three senators were on hand when Strauss, a gray-haired man, told the Senate.

He said his firm had paid $100,000 from originating sales of $14,000,000, through the company's participation in issues totaling $14,000,000.

EXPENSES "HEAVY"
A $200,000 issue for the Province of Lower Austria was originated by the Seligman Company with a spread of 1 1/2 per cent between the cost and sale price.

Senator John H. Chamberlain, Republican, C., asked why the spread was so wide.

Strauss said the expense of selling a small loan required a wide spread. He testified his company made $30,000 and the expense was $7,000.

20 MEN FLEE 800 CASES OF RUM

$45,000 Cargo Seized by the Coast Guard and Police at Scituate; Blame Rival Gang

Liquor valued at $45,000 was seized on Scituate Beach today as 20 rum-runners fled through a police and coast guard cordon and escaped.

The rumrunners abandoned nearly 800 cases of liquor near Fourth Cliff when their hideouts gave the alarm that police were surrounding the cache.

Police Chief Michael Stewards placed a guard over the liquor and Capt. Sumner Corbett of the Coast Guard boarded an anchored fishing smack on suspicion that the rum came from there.

The vessel was not seized, nor was her crew arrested, there being a lack of direct evidence.

One of the early arrivals—successful in obtaining a bottle—grew restless during the seizure and was arrested.

The cache was revealed through a telephone call to Capt. Corbett, plainly from a rival of the gang.

30 ARRESTED IN UNDER-COVER CLEAN UP

Full Confessions, Baring Vast Corruption, Obtained From Dozen of Those Held

Washington, Jan. 8 (AP)—Charged with having accepted bribes from rum runners, about 30 enlisted men of the United States coast guard today faced a court martial which already had passed sentence on four enlisted men accused of accepting money from liquor smugglers.

New York, Jan. 8 (INS)—A confession now in the hands of U. S. Atty. Howard W. Amiel reveals the coast guard as a nest of corruption and an organization honeycombed with with bribes.

According to exclusive information obtained by the New York Evening Journal, at least 30 coast guardmen have been arrested, 12 have made complete confessions, and the high-ups are trembling at the disclosures which may be expected.

The investigation has been secret but the Evening Journal has obtained full details from sources close to the investigation. The most damaging confession was obtained from a man still in the coast guard who was formerly in charge of a picket boat whose duties were to patrol in and about the waters of New York bay and the Hudson river, stopping the activities of the rumrunners.

REVEAL 5-WAY TIEUP

He revealed the tieup between the liquor barons of New York, rum runners and members of the Coast Guard. Suspicions of the authorities were first aroused when raids on New York speakeasies revealed them stocked with local imported whiskey and wine. Raid after raid resulted in the confiscation of excellent liquor where a year ago even the best drink importers dispensed cut and inferior stock.

Believing that great quantities of genuine liquor could be brought into New York only through the connivance of those who had sworn to keep it out, the authorities launched an intensive undercover investigation, placing agents on picket boats, rum boats and in speakeasies.

UNDER THEIR NOSE It soon became evident that the uniform they wore and the oath they had taken acted as no bar to the acceptance of bribes. Picket boats under the command and manned by coast guardmen were cruising conveniently in far away waters when rum fleets scurried under cover of darkness to Long Island Sound.

When the alarm was raised the defenders of the dry law hurried to Long Island Sound—and there they found the New York harbor landing bottled after bottled from New York that the mail contained two packages, one for the premier and one for the king.

DEHAMMAN FILES SUITS FOR $11,000

Action Grows Out of Collision With Woman's Auto at Buzzards Bay

Charge that Police Chief William Murdoch of Bourne and Associate Justice Paul M. Swift of Barnstable district court attempted to extort money from him on threat of court action, was made today by George S. Williams of 25 Marion st., Dedham.

The charge was made in three suits filed by Williams in Superior court at Dedham—two suits for $5000 each against Chief Murdoch and Judge Swift, and a suit for $1000 against Mrs. Laura B. Crump of Monument Beach, Barnstable.

According to Williams' allegations, his automobile and that of Mrs. Crump were in collision at Buzzards Bay last October, but no arrests were made.

Later, he alleges, he was handed communications bearing signatures of Chief Murdoch and Judge Swift, setting forth that Williams would be arrested and prosecuted unless he paid certain persons a sum of money that would satisfy Mrs. Crump.

Since then Atty. Thomas Otis of Hyannis has brought suit for $3000 against Mrs. Crump and against Williams, alleging both property damage and personal injury.

Seeks Divorce

Nancy Hoyt Curtis, Washington author, and wife of Edward Devlin Curtis, member of an old Boston family, is in Reno to seek a divorce.

Boston society was amazed today at reports from Reno that Nancy Hoyt, romantic authoress, had arrived in that city seeking a divorce from her second husband, Edward D. Curtis, Harvard graduate and member of one of Boston's oldest families.

She and Curtis were married in 1927 and were apparently happy. First rumors of a rift came with her arrival in Reno yesterday. Reaching the Nevada city, she admitted that she was seeking a divorce.

Boston friends of Curtis and members of his family expressed surprise. His father, Dr. Francis C. Curtis, of Commonwealth ave., said he had heard nothing of the divorce.

His marriage to Nancy Hoyt took place shortly after her divorce from her first husband, Gerald Alastair Wyne, in 1927. The impulsive daughter of former U. S. Solicitor-General Henry M. Hoyt of Washington, had already amazed the country with her romance. In 1922 she eloped with Frederick Wiseman-Clark, of the Royal British Navy, precociously at the altar. She married Wyne a few years later and divorced him in Paris six months afterward. Her marriage to Curtis took place only a few months later.

MILFORD ALKY PLANT SEIZED

Milford, Jan. 8 (INS)—Six Boston federal agents, assisted by local police, today raided a vacant house in the residential district and seized a $100,000 alcohol plant in full operation. Two men were arrested.

The stills, each of 200-gallon capacity, were in operation. A quantity of mash and the finished product was seized. The federal men said the plant had been in operation only three weeks.

The men arrested were John C. Ogilvie, 21, and Alphonse Bartoli, 30, both of Milford. They were held for appearance before U. S. Commissioner Jerney in Boston.

GUSTIN DEATH WITNESS HELD

Carmine Patolo of Endicott st., North End, one of the chief witnesses in the murders of Frank Wallace and Bernard "Dodo" Walsh, Gustin gang leaders, was arraigned in municipal court today on a charge of being idle and disorderly.

At request of Sgt. Edward J. Keating of police headquarters, the case was continued to January 11, and Patolo was held in $200.

He was arrested after giving himself up for "knap-keeping" following the North End shooting, and following also, he said, an attempt to inveigle him to Providence on the pretense that he would be paid $50 for fighting three rounds in a boxing match.

DUCE GUARDED IN BOMB PLOT

Paris, Jan. 8 (INS)—An attempt upon the life of Signor Gentile, Italian consul-general in Paris, was made today. He was wounded in the thigh by a bullet from a revolver. Police said the assassin was Michael Hichol, a native of Bolles Letters at the Italian school in Paris.

Rome, Jan. 8 (AP)—Watchful officials guarded all ports of entry into Italy today following reports of information that bombs intended for Premier Mussolini and King Victor Emmanuel are on the high seas in the hold of the mail steamer from New York to Genoa.

The situation was further complicated by reports of the discovery of anti-fascist bomb plots at Paris and Nice.

Detailed information of the bombs reported aboard the Excelsior was being, but the company's agents at Genoa said they were advised from New York that the mail contained two packages, one for the premier and one for the king.

POOR PAY FOR SINS OF RICH, SAYS PINCHOT

This is the final article based on an exclusive interview with Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania.

By JAMES L. KILGALLEN (Copyright, 1932, for Boston Evening American)

Harrisburg, Pa., Jan. 4 (INS).—Over-concentration of wealth, in the opinion of Gov. Gifford Pinchot of Pennsylvania, is the chief cause of the economic conditions prevailing today.

The big problem, he said in an interview at the executive chamber, is how to meet the unemployment crisis. The big problem of tomorrow is how to prevent similar conditions from arising again.

FOUR REAR BURDEN

"Too much of our common income goes to production and too little to consumption," he said. "Too much income goes into the hands of those who do not spend it but re-invest it to create more production."

Governor Pinchot declared it was unfortunate that the punishment has fallen mostly on the great mass of people whose incomes are already too small.

"There are 400 people in this country who have average incomes of $246,000 apiece," said Governor Pinchot. "There are 4,000,000 who have average incomes of only $1000 apiece."

"I am vigorously in favor of higher income taxes on the upper brackets and higher inheritance taxes as one way to reduce the over-concentration of wealth."

RICH ESCAPE LIGHTLY

Governor Pinchot declared that the method of the Hoover-Gifford committee "bears down more heavily on the poor than the rich."

"Workers for various companies are substantially required to give one day's pay a month," he said. "But the rich men are not required to give the same percentage of their incomes."

Triple Collision Delays Traffic

A 25-minute stop of Elevated service was caused at Concord ave. and Chestnut st., Cambridge, late yesterday, as the result of a collision involving two autos and an Elevated car.

An inbound street car operated by Patrick G. Mulligan of 37 Mission rd., Belmont, according to officials, was in collision with a machine operated by Mrs. Helen Melton of Parkville rd., West Roxbury. The impact knocked the auto against a parked car owned by Dr. George O. Cogswell of 35 Concord ave.

FR. COX'S ARMY VANGUARD HOME

Pittsburgh, Jan. 5 (AP)—Tired but seemingly content, the vanguard of Father James R. Cox's army of unemployed men arrived in Pittsburgh today to seek sleep in the basement of Father Cox's church.

Behind them are the thousands of others who followed the priest to Washington to ask federal relief for the unemployed.

Father Cox and the main section of the army are at Uniontown preparing for a triumphant return to their homes.

Flying Priest Plans to Land Plane in Alaskan Volcano

Seward, Alaska, Jan. 5 (INS)—Before sailing today for Ispahana, Wash., to attend his father's funeral, Harry Blunt noted Alaskan pilot, revealed that he and Father Bernard Hubbard of Santa Clara University, Cal., planned to land an airplane inside Aniakchak volcano next summer.

Blunt and Father Hubbard had a miraculous escape from death last June when a strong wind current pulled their airplane with an amazing suddenness toward the smoldering volcano. Blunt's skillful piloting saved them.

GARNER URGED TO RUN WITH ROOSEVELT

By LOUIS SEIBOLD.

Washington, Jan. 5—A naive maneuver (conspiracy of Roosevelt inspiration) will undoubtedly prove of great interest to people of Texas and the South, generally.

It is suggested that John Nance Garner would make a good running mate for Franklin D. Roosevelt on the Democratic presidential ticket.

The proposition is important. It reflects the deep concern of Mr. Roosevelt's supporters. Garner's growing popularity among Democratic leaders is unquestioned. Many of these leaders believe he would make a stronger and more appealing candidate for President than Mr. Roosevelt.

GARNER GAINS FAVOR. Roosevelt's move, therefore, is properly interpreted as a move to prevent the disintegration of Roosevelt forces in the Southern States. No greater compliment could have been paid the men who prefer Mr. Garner to Mr. Roosevelt than this evidence of perturbation among the supporters of the New York Governor.

Until a week ago, it seemed absolutely certain that Mr. Roosevelt would win the support of the Southern States without a struggle. His chances now are not so good.

The advent of Mr. Garner as a most attractive presidential candidate explains the reason for the change.

CLUBS ARE FORMED. Several "Garner-for-President" clubs already have been started in many sections of Texas. Admirers of the Speaker in Alabama, Oklahoma, Arkansas, Mississippi, Louisiana and a number of other Southern States have set about creating organizations to advance his presidential interests.

It is not unlikely that during the next two or three months the wave of favoring sentiment will extend to other parts of the country.

HOSPITAL FOR MALDEN URGED. The Malden Anti-Tuberculosis Society, at a meeting last night, entered its opposition to Malden being called upon to pay $154,000 towards the cost of construction of the new Middlesex County tuberculosis hospital at Waltham.

In a communication sent to Mayor Manning today, the society urges the mayor to appoint a special commission to study the question of providing its own hospital and to refuse to pay the assessment and withdraw Malden patients from the Waltham institution.

The society informed the mayor that Malden had 16 patients at the Waltham institution and that there were 12 more at Ruland. In addition to these, there are but six other persons requiring care for tuberculosis.

The society points out that this total of 36 patients could be cared for in a special hospital at a fraction of the cost which the county is assessing the city.

WESTINGHOUSE MEN MEET

More than one hundred Westinghouse executives, engineers and salesmen throughout New England have been holding a sales meeting for the last two days at their Boston office at 19 High st.

This meeting is one of a series being held throughout the country to show Westinghouse employees the improvement out in the older Westinghouse lines of merchandise and the new and improved appliances that have been developed in the last year.

"Westinghouse has been one of the industrial leaders in the readjustment of its business to fit present day conditions," J. S. Tittle, vice-president and general manager of Westinghouse said.

Taking 1929 as a basis, industrial business in the United States has decreased as a whole about 50 per cent. Because of the foresight of industrial leaders through reorganization and economic operations it does not take the bulk of 1930 to realize prosperity in the country, but only a 15 per cent at 50 per cent business over the present volume will put in present electrical manufacturing

PATIENT IS OWN SURGEON

Dr. Kane Operates on Self Again

Kane, Pa., Jan. 8.—Udding a local anesthetic, Dr. Evan O'Brien Kane, 70, went under his own knife in a delicate inguinal hernia operation. He was the first surgeon in America, it is believed, to operate on himself for appendicitis.

Dr. Kane is the father of Prof. Bluma Kane Kane, 34, recently acquitted at Hampton, Va., of a charge of murdering his wife.

Dr. Kane's condition was said to be good today, although a sedative had been administered so he could escape the pain and sleep.

The operation took an hour and 15 minutes.

companies in a prosperous condition.

"New England, which has always been a leader in restoring the country to a prosperous condition, has been showing very favorable trends in increased sales during the past few months."

"The Westinghouse Company still retains in their plants, effort and sales force 80 per cent of their employees, although the volume of business has decreased to 50 per cent."

Other executives addressing the meeting were C. E. Stephens, commercial vice-president in charge of sales in Eastern United States, and J. W. Alexander, New England district manager.

AUTO ACCIDENT CLAIMS DROP

The effect of the inquiry into the activities of lawyers suspected of complicity in false claims under the compulsory automobile insurance law, was noted in the docket of Suffolk Superior Civil Court where cases were fewer this month, Clerk Francis A. Campbell announced.

Announcement also was made last night that the hearings to be given the suspected lawyers will start Tuesday, will be held in the office of William H. Hildesheim, appointed by the Supreme Court as special commissioner to hear the cases for the court, and will be held in private.

No one except the accused, his lawyer, the witnesses against him and Frederick W. Mansfield, who will be prosecutor, will be allowed at the sessions.

Mansfield appeared yesterday in the Supreme Court and secured from the justices an amendment to the original order, under which the inquiry was authorized.

The amendment specifies that the hearings may be ordered by Hildesheim without notice to anyone except the investigators and the witnesses, and it also provides that should the accused attorney request a public hearing of the charges against him, such a hearing shall be held in the Suffolk Courthouse.

ELY URGED CUTS TO SAVE JOBS

The suggestion of Governor Ely to the Legislature that salaries of State employees from $2000 up be reduced 10 per cent for this year was motivated by a desire to prevent a general decrease in the number of employees in minor branches of government, he declared today.

Ely's financial, he said, are in relatively excellent condition. Several cities, however, will be forced to make drastic retrenchments to keep above water, in his opinion, and he expressed the conviction that if the municipalities follow the example of the Commonwealth in this respect the general situation will be much better by spreading a slight reduction all the way along the line than by maintaining large groups out of employment.

Executive of the State Employees' Association will assemble tomorrow afternoon to discuss the proposal.

'INSIDE' CLUES IN $100,000 MAIL THEFT

Lowell, Jan. 8.—Clues obtained from two slashed mail sacks found in North Tewksbury, convinced postal inspectors today that they were right in diagnosing the $100,000 mail theft on New Year's eve as an "inside job."

These clues greatly narrow the search for those responsible for the theft, it was declared.

It was pointed out that while the canvas and leather sacks were slashed open, the automatic rotary locks were also missing.

RECONSTRUCT ROBBERY
These facts convinced the investigators that somebody on the inside participated in the theft.

Reconstructing the crime, they explained their theory as follows:

The two sacks of registered mail, having been removed from the large mailbag, were first opened by using the rotary lock, which automatically records a higher number each time the sack is opened.

At time passed, the thieves, still in this vicinity, became frightened as the probers narrowed their search.

It was then decided to cut off the rotary locks, which remained as tell-tale evidence that an insider participated in the theft, to bury them or hurt them into the river, and then to slash open the sacks and toss them by the roadside.

DRY WHEN FOUND
The investigators explained that there was absolutely no reason to remove the locks, and slash open the sacks, too, unless events had taken place as they suggest.

The pouches, thrown into a gully 20 feet from the main road to Lawrence, were dry although heavy rain had fallen until after midnight.

Postal Inspectors Thomas P. Cronin, John J. Brown and Byron S. Hall are proceeding on the belief that the thieves never left this city after the robbery.

The bags were found by Moody Whitcomb, 20-year-old farmhand, whose home is in Martin rd., North Tewksbury, a half-mile from the gully.

Whitcomb was paid a reward as promised by the postal inspectors for finding the bags, but neither they nor he would say how much.

"I got a darn good day's pay,"

HUNGER ARMY'S LEADER AT GOAL

by said with a laugh. Examination of the bags showed that the locks had been torn off and the canvas slit. It was in one of these bags that the white canvas balls from Union-Old Lowell Station at Bank had been placed for shipment to the Federal Reserve Bank in Boston.

Reconstruction of the robbery indicates that it took place on the station platform after the pouches were piled with others on the shed truck and wheeled to the far end to meet the mail car.

Arrival of the pouch at the station is placed at about 9:12 p. m. New Year's Eve. It is the custom for two assistant station masters to wheel the shed truck alongside the mail truck and assist in unloading the sacks.

The $100,000 pouch, to all outward appearance, was no different from any of the remaining 30 on the shed truck. Only by close observation could anyone determine its peculiar markings. And that observation would have to be made by a person familiar with the markings or instructed as to their location and significance.

It is believed that one of the band, learned that the Boston-bound train, due at 9:30, was 12 minutes late. Thus the thieves were given ample time in which to work.

Piecing these bits of conjecture together, the inspectors inclined to the theory that the $100,000 pouch was singled out even before it was taken down the platform on the station truck.

Out of the mass of detail, there remains unsettled one tiny bit that may prove of paramount importance.

In order for the thieves to grab it without delay, the tab distinguishing the sack as "No. 3" must have been so placed as to be seen as they approached the truck.

STATE MUST AID ITS OWN; U. S. CAN'T-GIFFORD

Washington, Jan. 8.—(AP)—Walter S. Gifford, director of Pennsylvania's relief organization, told a Senate committee in a prepared statement today that "each state will care for its own who must have help this winter."

Gifford qualified this declaration with the stipulation that it was subject to "various legislative instances."

He presented his views to the Senate's manufacturers' committee considering bills providing for direct Federal assistance to the unemployed.

"It would seem," Gifford said, "that the combined efforts of communities, counties and states can take care of the situation this winter."

"Should community and state responsibility be lessened by federal aid, the sincere and whole-hearted efforts of the hundreds of thousands of volunteers engaged in raising and administering relief funds would doubtless be materially lessened."

"The net result might well be that the unemployed in need would be worse off instead of better."

DAMON RYUNON TURNS BRIDGE EXPERT

By DAMON RYUNON
Copyright, 1931, by Universal Service, Inc.

New York, Jan. 6—Four correspondents came upon a most peculiar spectacle in the ornate lobby of the New Waldorf-Astoria, last night.

Strawped upon a pile, his bulk overtopping the upholder, was the good M. Jacques Armand Curley, the famed promoter of prize fights, wrestling, dance, tennis, tennis, tennis, and wrestling.

The good M. Jacques was crying large tears down his pudgy cheeks, he felt spinning on the large carpet at his feet. A uniform attendant was mopping up the overflow with a sponge.

"Bos—bos—bos!" moaned M. Jacques.

"Why do you weep, Mr. Curley?" inquired, sympathetically, "Mr. Jim Lenz bawled his leg, or Mr. Tilden asked for more money!"

WEEP AT LOST ADMISSIONS.

"No," said M. Jacques, gulping. "That is not the reason. I cry because I just propositioned that they should let me put this bridge business in Madison Square Garden and charge an admission fee, and he refused over all that waste of admission fee. Bos—bos—bos—bos!"

I left M. Jacques in his weeping and went up to the fifth floor where the bridge had been going on, and on, and on, and on, since last fall. Or maybe it had since last spring. Anyway, it had been going on a long time, and nothing much had come of it, except that it has turned a lot of people to playing bridge, who would have been better off if they had stuck to shooting craps.

The idea of the bridge business in the beginning was as follows:

ONLY AN INJUNCTION.

A Mr. Lenz, Lenz claimed he had a system of playing bridge that was a little bit the best ever in the world, to which M. Curley, Lenz said, he had a system, to see which was which, and now it looks as if only an injunction can stop them.

They have been getting more publicity than the depression, several rooms adjacent to the seat of the terrible struggle are filled with newspaper tables and gent, typewriter and telephone operators. The scribbles who have been following the midget since it started were like extracts from one of Mr. Curley's books, or maybe Mr. Lenz's, and they were each one of the best players.

DEVIL'S CALLING CARDS.

Personally, I know nothing whatever of bridge, and very little of any other kind of card playing.

CULBERTSONS THAT FEEL FOR LEAD

The following was written by Josephine Culbertson, wife of Ely Culbertson and with him originator of the approach-bidding system of contract bridge.

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON
World's Greatest Woman Bridge Player, Written Expressly for the Boston Evening American.

(Copyright, 1932, by International News Service.)

New York, Jan. 6.—In contract bridge, as in life, it is well to prepare for a rainy day.

The past three seasons in the 150 rubber match saw the fall of considerable rain so far as we are concerned, and today the storm clouds still loom dark against the sky.

The greater part of the losses for us have been due to causes over which we had no control. For instance, in the last session in which I played, I seemed to me that almost every hand I put down a score for honors held by our opponents.

Since it is not as well that we had assumed a lead which should be great enough to carry us through to victory, regardless of the snipe or frowns of fate, because there were a number of in players of bidding and play last night which resulted disastrously from our viewpoint.

ESCAPED LARGER SCORE.

The story of last night's play was the story of a combination of strong hands for our adversaries, interpreted with a few instances of failure to take advantage of the rare opportunities we had to gain.

In consequence our opponents reduced our lead to 870 points at the end of the 14th rubber. One consolation we had was that our opponents were using the "official" system and not the approach-bidding system, as they would have piled up an even greater score than they did with the cards they held.

In example is the deal of the 34th rubber of the match, which I am in bidding, following East-Dealer. Both sides vulnerable.

NORTH (Lenz)
—A 5 5 2
—K 2 7 5
—Q 3
—A 2 2

WEST (Culbertson)
—A 8 4 4
—K 10 8 6
—Q 8 7 6
—A 10 7 5 5

SOUTH (Liggett)
—A K Q 10 7
—K 10 7 5 5
—A 10 7 5 5
—A 10 7 5 5

The bidding:
East—South—West—North
1 Heart—3 Spades—Pass—Pass

In the play four spades were easily made. Had Condr. Liggett used the bid which would have been available to him in the approach-bidding system, he would have overruled our heart with two hearts and Lenz would preface have bid two no trump.

DEADLY HANDS.

With this strong bidding by the south hand the contract of four spades should be reached, as Mr. Lenz's hand is strong enough, in view of the two heart overcall and the subsequent three spade bid, to bid four spades.

The hands were rather deadly in their monotony and so over whelming that they had little of interest, either in the bidding or play. One of the hands which was typical was the following:

South—Dealer. North—South vulnerable. Part score. N 8 8 8.

NORTH (Lenz)
—A K 7
—Q 10 8 4 3
—K 10 8 4 3
—A 10 8 4 3

WEST (Culbertson)
—A 10 5 3
—Q 10 5 3
—A 10 5 3
—A 10 5 3

The bidding:
South—West—North—East
1 N. T.—2 Clubs—3 Hearts—Pass
Pass—Pass—Pass—Pass

The result was that the contract of four diamonds was set four tricks. How Ely escaped without a double and temporarily saved the last rubber of the evening will remain a constant mystery. As it was, the defeat of 200 points on the hand was a clear gain, as we later scored a game, returning the rubber bonus to 500 points.

Charles M. Schwab, known to the world of business as president of Bethlehem Steel Corporation, but to the bridge world as the legendary president of the White Club, New York, was a visitor at the game.

MR. HEARST WINS PRAISE

Former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell today endorsed the sentiments expressed by William Randolph Hearst in a nationwide broadcast last Saturday night when he took the Hoover administration to task and declared the next President would have to be a man concerned with the welfare of this country rather than that of Europe.

PEOPLE OFFENDED.

"It has been conclusively proven by the decisive defeat of Mr. Wilson's policies that the American people are against the League of Nations in any of its forms—whether it be the World Court or any kind of a contrivance that would, in any way, embroil us in world politics, whether in Europe or Asia," O'Connell said.

I am firmly convinced that internationalism in all its phases is offensive to American citizens of all classes outside of those who are committed for selfish reasons to the schemes of international bankers.

"Would it not have been a calamity, at the present time, to have had the League of Nations give us an order to ship our boys to Asia to interfere in a fight between China and Japan? This would have happened if we had been a member of the League."

COUNTRY HUMILIATED.

"I feel that the conduct of Secretary of State Stimson has brought this country into ridicule and into contempt."

"No man can win the next Presidency—even though the success of the Democratic Party seems inevitable—unless he is absolutely committed against any policy which would bring the United States into the League of Nations. We have immense difficulties confronting us here and every sane American citizen should mind his own business here at home and let the rest of the world attend to its affairs."

The warning of Mr. Hearst should be followed by every man and woman who is likely to be a candidate for delegate to the next National Democratic Convention.

HATCH HONORED AT TUFTS

Harold C. Hatch of Rochester, star pitcher for the Tufts team, is announced today as chairman of the Tufts 1932 class commencement. The only, with him are John J. Maloney, freshman football manager, and John C. Prescott, varsity football manager.

us here and every sane American citizen should mind his own business here at home and let the rest of the world attend to its affairs."

The warning of Mr. Hearst should be followed by every man and woman who is likely to be a candidate for delegate to the next National Democratic Convention.

SORE THROAT

FIVE minutes after you rub on Musterole your throat should begin to feel less sore. Continue the treatment once every hour for five hours and you'll be astonished at the relief.

This famous blend of oil of mustard, camphor, menthol and other ingredients brings relief naturally. Musterole gets action because it is a "counter-irritant"—not just a salve-it penetrates and stimulates blood circulation and helps to draw out infection and pain. Used by millions for 20 years. Recommended by doctors and nurses.

To Mothers—Musterole is also made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

If National Broadcasting Company executives have heard this one, they might like to stop it being told. Then again perhaps playing an accomplishment of the Columbia System may spur Mr. Aylsworth's air army onward. Columbia claims to have set a record for a single day's radio activity.

BEST DAY

One week ago yesterday, WABC of New York, which feeds facilities to our own WNBC and WAAB, transmitted 41 different programs originating outside of their station studios. These special offerings were picked up by lines of the CBS network from 35 points situated in 15 cities of the United States, Canada, Germany and England.

Congratulations, Mr. Paley! You set the brand new cellophane program, no more, no less.

Unimportant turmoil attending what music publishers sang were not used by Lew Conrad's Marketers last night. And the blase of glory with which laughing little Lew's boys "went to town" for their, ahem, director, unless your Uncle N. F. T. has developed mahogany arms and serves a place at the top of all other dance orchestras that have yet played for Father Jack's inimitable incorrigible Winchell, the wit.

CIVIC COMPLIMENT

Purdumers, Lew's selection for the NBC network hour was corking national publicity for Boston. Credit that afterthought to Mr. Curley. Whenever Boston is heard from here to California, think of Mr. Curley's name.

Nick Lucas wanted to discharge his musical arranger last week and told him to make his own arrangements. The hiring kept right on at work, making such improved arrangements for Nick that he has been retained.

Arousing grow-up interest in a kiddie feature is a sure sign of continually writing ability. Bill (Uncle Ben) Whipple and John (WBE) McNamara are getting as much fan mail from newspapermen over 21 as they are from little folk. When "Jack the Giant Killer" scurries deep into the "Forest of Make Believe" to escape the giant's wrath, full grown, there to meet him Humphrey Dumpty, Little Boy Blue and The Pied Piper, scores of delicate tones, also instructing mothers to keep the youngsters quiet between 8 and 9 p. m.

LOCAL LATHER

New is the "Doctor of Melody" but listeners will like through WNBC this evening (8:30 to 9:15) with Bob Pierce's "Melody Hour," a pleasure to comment that WBEI (for or against) combination J. V. MacDonald and Louis Whitcomb by name, for forwarding more news than ever today, addressing their four-page release to "The Honorable Columnist," "Merced Buttercuppe, man," "Oscar Elgar's (WBEI) musical half hour was full of martial melody last night (7:30) when his program went Nationally Military." North-eastern University Club sing-along came to microphone tonight for their initial appearance on the 322 season (WABC) radio, presenting C. Leonard Goltzman of Quincy as soloist.

When teamed up, those Jayvint (plano) duo Sisters with vocalists Morton Davis, knew something better than add one makes three... Five foot length plays five musical comedies, nearly a dozen (11) concert plays and 150 songs including "Kinky Lindy" in the background with which "Doc" Eisenberg moves into Tenix Network studios as a new musical boss man... One song those Charleston chaps don't relish by radio is "Time on My Hands." Mickey Apter has difficulty deciding his own program and success simply must be reflected in others... He therefore contemplates developing local popular songs... Some Bostonian demon sup-jested to Ray (Old Tom) Perkins his invention of a "Square Mouth Ball" imagine! What announcer hereabouts says "dubny" for "double U" and how many realize "W" is in reality a double U when writing in long hand? Try it just for fun.

10 MILLIONS IS A YALE SAVANT ROSENWALD'S LAST GIFT BACKS 4 P. C. BEER BILL

Chicago, Jan. 8 (AP).—Julius Rosenwald, shortly before his death Wednesday, called his sons and daughters together and directed them with the task of carrying on his philanthropic work. In a statement prepared for the press, the late philanthropist said that he had given to the American Jewish Archives, which he had founded, a sum of $10,000,000. Half of the sum, $5,000,000, was to be used for the building of a new synagogue in New York City, and the other $5,000,000 was to be used for the building of a new synagogue in Chicago. The statement also said that Rosenwald had given to the American Jewish Archives a sum of $100,000,000, which was to be used for the building of a new synagogue in New York City, and the other $100,000,000 was to be used for the building of a new synagogue in Chicago.

ENGLAND REJECTS AVOWAL OF SIN IN PRAYER

By GILBERT SELDES

OFF THE GOLD STANDARD England may be, and full of trouble in India, but a universal confession of its sins is still unobtainable. Among the special prayers allowed for these times by the Archbishops of York and Canterbury, one was considered particularly offensive and vicars refused to read it, on the sensible ground that none of their parishioners believed a word of it. It ran, "Because we have indulged in national arrogance, finding satisfaction in our power over others rather than in our ability to serve them, forgive us our trespasses." It sounds like an apology for a hundred years of ruling over India, for old forgotten butcheries and perhaps for the imprisonment of Gandhi a few days ago. I do not wonder the prayer was rejected.

Simple Request

At Canterbury a prayer for the League of Nations "and particularly for the conference on disarmament about to assemble" was offered, and broadcast. This seems to have had no preamble confounding ancient errors; it merely prayed for what most people believe to be impossible, thus corresponding with the common idea of what prayer really means. Perhaps the English feel that when there is so much to be done to insure the present, it is not a good time to go into sackcloth and the past.

It was another Archbishop of York who caused trouble in England long ago and, through Shakespeare as a medium, provided us with a text against the superstit. In King Henry the Eighth, the early scenes revolve around a protest against an unfair tax; one-sixth of every man's property to be paid for a war with France. Wolsey denies that he is responsible, but the King remits the tax and adds, "Sixth part of each." A trembling contribution! Why we take from every tree, lop bark and part of the timber; And though we leave it with a root, thus black'd, The air will drink the sap." Poetry for a 16 per cent tax! What would Shakespeare say to 15 shillings out of twenty?

The Sick and the Well

The only man who has distinguished himself in comment on the Finnish vote on prohibition is Dr. Clarence Truss Wilson, general secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Moral Reform. His statement was, "I have been in ill health for six weeks and have not kept in close touch with the situation." This is a more intelligent statement than most of those Dr. Wilson gives to the press, yet one sincerely hopes he will return quickly to health and, among other things, tell Mr. Debs Pickett, secretary to the same board, a few things. Mr. Pickett is sure that the Finns voted to throw out prohibition because the wine interests in various European countries corrupted the country by smuggling. "Not that the smuggling was of wine," says Mr. Pickett, "but of spirits intended to prepare the way for the restoration of the wine trade." I have read some pretty involved thrillers, but the idea of the whiskey smugglers being absorbed by the wine merchants, in order to cultivate a taste for wine in the simple Finns, is too complicated for me.

Strange Minds

The mind of a prohibitionist is a queer, devious, and subtle thing; the mind of a well is simple and direct. Note the direction, and also the simplicity of Mr. Curran, president of the Association Against "As soon as that permission (to vote on the Amendment) is accorded to us, we Americans will vote for prohibition." That is the kind of simplicity which, in another connection, used to be called sacred. Opposed to him is the winning Mr. Victor, of the Anti-Slavery League, who says that the Finnish people must have to return to prohibition because "they will find out as the people of the United States have found out, that there is no adequate system of control short of prohibition." Or the imaginative Andrew McCampbell, who has heard of the depression and believes that America and Europe were spending money on wet propaganda in Finland.

Next to Dr. Wilson, I rank former Prohibition Administrator Maurice Campbell, who said, "Prohibition prohibits but does not prevent consumption of liquor." It isn't accurate, but it is true.

THE VOICE OF BROADWAY

Hope!
I hope he found me peering fairly
He noticed my eyes; he praised my hair.
I hope he found me wondrous eyes;

I hope and pray he'll never find

That I've a husband and baby

Hi Bye, There!

When an undistinguished cab knocked down and brushed the distinguished Winston Churchill recently, that was news—if you don't believe it, turn back to the papers of a few weeks ago and read the headlines. Mr. Churchill if you recall, magnanimously forgave the driver, had his wounds patched up and then sailed the other day for a brief cruise.
What is interesting, if it is interesting, because Mr. Churchill is a gentleman of some distinction in England. But if you think Mr.
Churchill having been knocked down by an American cab and wounded to the quick, he forgotten the incident, you're crazy. Far from it. He sat down and wrote a few thousand words on "How I Feel to Be Run Down by an American Cab" and sold it to an English publication for 500 pounds, almost $2500. The astute Englishman!

So You Know!

According to a firm soon to hit the book stalls—"The Inside Story of the Harding Tragedy"—the title
—the late President Harding was never in that famous little house in K Street—nor for that matter was the former Attorney General, Harry B. Daugherty. From a newspaper review of the book I learn that the author, Thomas

Dixon, brands the whole tale as mere fabrication and goes on at length to prove that the President never noticed the place. When [said it does now to bring the whole matter up again, I don't know, but as long as it has been, and since the author insists, I must assure him that the late Mr. Harding was frequently a visitor at the "little green house," and that if for a while I furnish him with the sworn statement of perhaps half a dozen persons who have no axe to grind in the matter at all. It's all very simple.
A famous orchestra played at the house several of eight times when Harding and Daugherty were present.
I can tell you who paid the orchestra on these occasions and I show you one or more of the cash-checked checks. The leader of the orchestra spoke to Harding on two of these occasions. Merely for ac-curacy's sake—and to keep the records straight.

Went McEccles!

The helpful Leonard [said] rushed to our aid with a specially compiled "Catalogue" of a "Jolly simple if you speak only loud enough—and don't forget the accent.

2000 IN DANGER IN FLOOD ZONE

Gilbert, Miss. Jan. 8 (AP)—Mississippi and Louisiana rivermen were asked today to hurry boats to this section for the removal of 2000 persons in the flood path resulting from the latest levee break near Shuckey, Miss.

The Red Cross said 200 paddle and motorboats are needed to carry persons and bring out refugees. Only two motor boats have been made available and three, the Red Cross said, expect to cope with the crisis in the Red Cross headquarters disclosed no box of life but approximately 5000 acres were overflowed by the new break and houses of thousands were flood-swept. The flood of 30 feet at twilight, was lessened as the water spread over a 20-mile area.

Boston, Jan. 8 (AP)—A choir choir in a church at Ponte d'Legno, collapsed today when 16 singers were chanting a mass. Three of the congregation were hurt.

LOST WOMAN IS FEARED DEAD

Jennie Hale, 47, prominent Rowley spinster who vanished in Boston, Monday, was the object of a search today.

Rowley police expressed the belief she was a suicide. Boston police continued a check of hospitals. Her sister, Miss Elizabeth Hale, reiterated her opinion that she suffered a loss of memory. She characterized as "absurd" a story that Miss Jennie may have fled or taken her life because of a quarrel with Thomas J. Cantrick, of Chandler st., South End, an old friend of the family whom she visited just before she dropped from sight.

Better Milk Has Helped!

We asked one of the leading health authorities in New England the causes of this splendid showing. He gave us an important reason: the high quality of milk available in Boston and vicinity and declared that the fine health record today compared with ten years ago is due, to a considerable extent, to the milk supply. During these ten years, Brookside Milk has had its part in the splendid health of Boston babies. Brookside Milk has won its large public of lusty infants and loyal mothers by—

ONE WELCOME DEPRESSION
There has been a depression in the city of Boston that can be dated that is in the infant mortality for 1921. That rate is the lowest in the entire history of the city since records were kept.
The babies dying under one year of age were 10.6. With a total of 18,950 births here during the year, the city of Boston had an infant mortality rate of but 61.35 per 1000, as compared with 70.2 in 1920 and 84.8 in 1921. The lowest death rate since 1921 was also recorded last year when 10,080 deaths brought the rate down to 18.8.
Our official cause of infant mortality is generally good, as to prenatal and post-natal attention the babies of this city obtain the best treatment possible and, we believe, the rate of survival is about the highest of any city in the country, thanks to our admirable health department and our good.

UP $5000

New York, Jan. 8.—Without enough money to buy food, Edward Doherty, 37 of Marlboro, Mass., turned over to the police last night a package containing jewelry valued at $5000 which he found in a men's washroom of an interborough subway station.

Doherty told the police he had come to New York five weeks ago, had worked two weeks as a bus boy in a restaurant, and had eaten his last meal on Wednesday.

Police fed him, gave him $1 for immediate expenses, arranged for a night's shelter, and promised to aid him in finding employment.

60 KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Moscow, Jan. 8 (U. P.)—At least 60 persons were killed when an express train rained into a crowded suburban train, 10 miles south of Moscow, it was disclosed today.

The death toll was increased when a freight train running on a parallel track crashed through the wreckage crushing many of the survivors. It was the third disastrous railroad accident in the vicinity of Moscow within the past month.

The wreck occurred Saturday, but official word of it was withheld until today. The casualty figures were not given and they could only be estimated.

'PROTECTION' BALKS U. S. VICE PROBERS

The Boston Evening American presents herewith the concluding article of a series of three, revealing details of the government's drive against the Eastern while alone else. Today's article discloses the difficulties being encountered by the federal investigators in running the racketeers down.

By GEORGE F. DUNO

International News Service Correspondent

(Copyright 1932, by the Boston Evening American)

Washington, Jan. 8 (U. P.)—Federal agents tracing the vicious trail of vice, corruption and murder leading to the principals in the East's big white slave ring find themselves confronted with covert, but effective, interference from police and politicians.

Another girl, arrested in the Colonial tea house shooting affair in Hildensburg Md., just outside Washington, made a sworn statement that Charles "Dugger" Leavitt, manager of the house, had said to a friend shortly before the shooting that "business was slow because the place was new, but the protection money was good."

Added to this interference from those in authority who are practicing in the ring's operations, the element of deadly fear almost everywhere in the East.

Every time an arrest is made the months to get at them.

undercover man had gained access to the house over which she presided—believed to be one controlled by the ring—and obtained evidence for a raid.

The agents applied for a warrant and returned to the house at once. The woman met them at the door and laughed at them. Cigarette smoke was still burning throughout the house, but the girls and guests were gone.

It was necessary, about two weeks later, to take a girl, arrested in another jurisdiction, into the city and awease out a federal injunction warrant against the woman on the girl's statement. Only the United States commissioner knew of its issuance. The house, running full blast, was raided, and arrests were made.

PUT WIFE IN HOUSE

There is an alliance between the girls and the men who work for the ring that is almost unbreakable to the average mind. One man was arrested, for instance, charged with placing two girls in one of the ring's road-houses. One girl was his bride for two months, the other was his sister.

Special Agent Alvin G. Neill, Parkersburg in charge of the investigation and the Department of Justice agents under J. Edgar Hoover are up against an extremely dangerous gang, to whom murder and every conceivable atrocity are merely a stock in trade. Felix Macchelin, known as "Man of War," who was injured in the Boston Tea House killing and therefore unable to escape, threatened to murder police, doctors and nurses alike when taken to the hospital and it was necessary to place a 24-hour guard over him.

It is believed the names of the "big shots" in the ring which has bankrupted the East with houses of ill fame are known to the authorities. It may take four or five months to get at them.

2 NEW PASTORS ARE NAMED

Two new pastors were named by Cardinal O'Connell in an announcement from the Diocese of Boston.

The new pastors are the Rev. Joseph A. Brantley, of St. Margaret's Church, Dorchester, who becomes pastor of St. Agnes Church, Reading, and the Rev. Ignatius E. Limont, locum tenens at the Church of Our Lady of Assumption, Montello, who becomes pastor.

Father Brantley, who succeeds the late Rev. Dennis W. Brown, was ordained by Cardinal O'Connell on Dec. 18, 1928, and has been in Dorchester some time. Before going to Dorchester he served at the Church of the Sacred Heart, now pastor.

Champ Hunter Bags 501 Hedgehogs in 23 Days

Keene, N. H., Jan. 8.—Parley E. Howard of Keene, champion hedgehog hunter, established an "all-time" record when he walked into the city clerk's office with the heads of 501 hedgehogs killed since Dec. 15.

Now 501 hedgehog heads mean quite a piece of change, for the State pays 20 cents for each head.

at Manchester-by-the-Sea, St. Ann's Church, Neponset, and St. Monica's Church, Methuen.

Father Limont was ordained with two other Holy priests by Cardinal O'Connell at St. Anne's Church, Nantasket, in August of 1916, and was sent to the church where he is now pastor.

COOK 'INVITED' BEATING

The story of how the cook burned the carrots in the home of Louis Cohen, 24, of Commonwealth ave., West Newton, was unfolded in Newton District Court when Cohen faced a charge of assault and battery.

Cohen was found not guilty of the charge preferred by Miss Theresa Miller of 389 Harvard st., Cambridge, the cook.

The girl said she was "fired" by Mrs. Cohen because the carrots were burned and that she was knocked down by Cohen when she challenged him to "strike me if you dare."

"You came pretty near inviting the attack," was Judge William F. Bacon's comment.

THIS IS LIFE

CALM BEFORE THE STORM

PRESAGES BIG NEWS THAT'S ON THE WAY

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

Over the keys the music organist
Beginning doubtfully and far away...

THESE ARE THE DAYS of the oldtimes, which are by definition "calms and light baffling winds." The old year has spent its force; the new year, beginning like some electrical machine with a faint hum, has not yet settled into the deep-toned, sustained note that betokens speed and power. Things have just not struck their stride.

Mr. Bill Cunningham of the Post, my respected contemporary, can find nothing better to write about than the dreadful state of clutter his desk has got into these past six months, and out of the story of cleaning it up he makes one of his characteristically humorous and pungent columns.

Mr. Joe Toye of the Traveler, perhaps wiser, or only perhaps luckier, sails for the West Indies for a well-deserved vacation, firm in the conviction that in such days no news can possibly break which will need one of his editorials to set it right. Our good wishes and our envy go with him.

And even I am stalling for time, as you can see. It would be interesting if some Frederick Astor would look back over the January news of the past score of years, in the effort to discover whether the New Year always comes in—not like a lamb—but like Mr. Beebe's Sloth, yawning his way through his dressing and bathing and breakfast, not yet capable of thought or action.

"Tis the voice of the sluggard; I heard him complain,
You have waked me too soon, I must slumber again!"

As good old Doctor Watts, who knew our feeble human nature pretty thoroughly, says many years ago.

Even Congress hardly raises the front pages. The majority and the minority are doing some pretty footwork, with occasional practice boxing, but there is no slugging as yet. Mr. Hoover leads with a message or two to the Democratic epigramist or broad-bracket, but is deftly countered, and the Democrats go into a clinch and try the painful and shocking rabbit punch of tariff revision.

Mr. Ely and Mr. Bacon and Mr. Saltonstall have made their respective allocations to the people, some paragraphs of which promise real action; notably the suggested salary cut of state employees and the abolition of the Administration and Budget Committee, which is to modern Massachusetts what the Council of Three was to ancient Venice.

Tonight the chiefs of the Democracy get together for their annual Jackson Dinner pow-wow, from which it may be possible to extract some notion as to what will happen within the party during the next six months. It will be a harmony dinner, of course, as all Democratic gatherings are harmonious, save for occasional slight suspicions of brass knuckles under the table and a trace of cyanide in the soup. May it remain harmonious—that is to say, provided one wing of the party does not try to force a controversial platform and a discredited candidate on the rest.

Across the hemisphere Gandhi goes peacefully to jail with some of his followers, and England holds her breath. There will be front page news from thereabouts anon. If Gandhi can hold his people to his plan for peaceful non-cooperation, we may yet see the spectacle of a handful of white Europeans trying desperately and in vain to keep things going, while all India sits back and watches. And what is the good of hanging on to India, if in India will neither work nor buy?

If, on the other hand, as seems not unlikely, the control of the movement has slipped out of Gandhi's hands and unto those who believe in dynamite, we may see troops hastily shipped to India, a brigaded England trying to raise money for an expensive foreign war, and scenes which will remind the historians of the Mutiny, of Capwore and the Black Hole. For the British ruling class mind has apparently changed little over a century, and the new victory seems to be one of those old-time rigid Englishmen whose motto, like Cromwell's, is Thorough.

Across the water Europe is going to see what we are going to do—calling names meanwhile and adding insult to indebtitude—and we wait to see what Europe is going to do. Above the horizon we catch the glow of the Disarmament conference, about which nobody seems to entertain any great hopes.

Industry and business stir and mutter in their sleep, almost as if considering getting up and doing something about it. Here in New England—praise be!—business is more than half awake, is actually trailing about the house doing the morning chores. It is in its shirt-sleeves, it is true, but maybe it can work better in shirt-sleeves than in frock coat.

Well, we shall see what we shall see. Last year was interesting and exciting enough, and there seems reason to believe that the coming year will not be entirely without matters of stimulus. Even if there were nothing else, a presidential election is going to be a three-circled circus for any country at any time. If today seems dull, that dullness is all of a piece with the hazy, lazy, mild, p.e., Indian summer atmosphere of this Thursday morning on which I am writing. Almost one might lie down under a tree and listen for nightingales.

But by the time this is printed we shall doubtless be yawning, that dullness is all of a piece with the hazy, lazy, mild, p.e., Indian summer atmosphere of this Thursday morning on which I am writing. Almost one might lie down under a tree and listen for nightingales.

As the White Queen was accustomed to say: Jam yesterday and jam tomorrow, but never jam today.

Harvard's Patriotic Bells Play Only in

GIFT OF RUSSIAN ELEPHANT

University Hunting for Someone Who Can Lure Harmony From 30 Tons of Metal

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE

If there is a Russian chime player about who could harness this ability with countless other academic and institutional duties—

Well, there might be a job for him at Harvard University.

The university has a problem. It doesn't concern the students or the curriculum or the dormitories. It has to do with the Russian chime bells which hang in Lowell House. Tower as the gift of Charles R. Crane of Chicago, the Russian bells have been played by them not sound Russian—but it's what any body, but a Russian plays them.

HAVE BEEN PLAYED

They have been played properly on state occasions—very state occasions—by Adriaef, who must be remembered from New York to do the job.

But Harvard doesn't feel the need of hiring a Russian chime player especially for the Russian bells and so the Lowell House tower has some 30 tons of tones but nobody to play the special Russian tune applicable to them.

Last February the bells were brought to the institution, and after a winter of experimenting and tangle, the bells were played for the first time.

No accidental music can be played on the bells. For Russian, for that matter, save that composed by the early monks who experimented with the bells for years and the heaviest of the 11 bells in the Lowell House Tower weighs about 14 tons. The next heaviest has about nine tons to it, and gradually they diminish until the smallest bell weighs a few hundred pounds.

STUDENTS PLAY BELLS

Harvard students must play on them and at them. Every Monday night when High Table Dinner is served at Lowell House, the ringing of the bells is a preliminary study. Mason Hammond, who devoted many quiet hours to practice after watching of the mason, Adriaef, carries on the Monday night service. When the weather is right, they can be heard for many miles around but President Lowell (taking the feelings and nerves of Cambridge residents into consideration, took care of the too much noise end of the musical program.

He ordered them hung lower than is ordinarily the custom, hence curtailing the below.

The bells came from a little monastery in the inner suburbs of Moscow.

CABOT FUNERAL TOMORROW

A last tribute will be paid tomorrow to Judge Frederick P. Cabot of the Boston juvenile court, at funeral services at 2:30 o'clock in King's Chapel.

National, State and municipal, together with judicial, civic and social leaders and other persons of prominence mourned the passing of the widely known and beloved friend of unfortunate youth.

Mr. Cabot, a close friend of the Cabot family, will officiate at the service, assisted by the Rev. John Carroll Perkins, pastor of King's Chapel.

The body will be cremated. Interment of the ashes will take place at the Arlington estate at Cambridge, Plain. The list of those who will comprise six nephews of the late Judge.

TONS OF CHIMES AT HARVARD AND NOT A NOTE OF MUSIC

Harvard's Russian bells, which refuse to harmonize in an orthodox manner, are shown as they are arranged in the cupola of Lowell House. The university is searching for someone who can master the chimes. They were brought from Moscow as the gift of Charles R. Crane, former ambassador to China.

Mayor Michael C. O'Neill of Everett has announced that he will be a candidate for the Democratic nomination for Lieutenant-Governor at the coming State primaries. The Everett chief executive stated that his campaign committee will be organized in the immediate future and active campaigning will be started in a few days. He said that the announcement comes the result of assured support from leading Democrats.

Two years ago, Mayor O'Neill told the Democratic convention that he would not run for office.

and FUND FEARED

Working alone military lines, 30,000 volunteers will comb the city in an immense house-to-house campaign to canvass for the $1,000,000 fund which the United Boston Unemployment Relief Committee is seeking to raise. Plans for the gigantic canvass were announced last night after a meeting of the executive committee of the organization.

Carroll J. Swan will have charge of the campaign in which the city will be divided into eight districts. Three former Boston mayors are among the members of the executive committee.

The eight districts with their locations and assignments are as follows: District 1 (Wards 1 and 2) under Vincent Brogan; District 2 (Wards 3, 4 and 5) under Carl Dreyfus; District 3 (Wards 6, 7 and 8) under Joseph Kirby; District 4 (Wards 9, 10, 11 and 12) under School Committee member Joseph J. Hurley; District 5 (Wards 13, 14 and 15) under C. D. Blythe; District 6 (Wards 16 and 17) under Mayor John P. Fitzgerald; District 7 (Wards 18, 19 and 20) under Mayor Andrew J. Peters; District 8 (Wards 21 and 22) under Joseph Maynard.

Walkers Must Pass Under

A barrier has been built round the traffic circle at the Boston end of the Longfellow bridge to force pedestrians to use the special underpass, which will be opened soon, at Cambridge and Charles streets.

The barrier is an ornamental balustrade of limestone, ranging from four to five feet high, with four openings, so that the walkers will not be tempted to skirt the four openings, so that the street through swift-moving traffic.

William Stanley Parker, who designed the balustrade on a special appointment by Mayor Curley, explained that a narrow alcove, which was left outside the balustrade, was a safety zone for the occasional pedestrian who might get caught in traffic.

Stories of Drinking and Wild Parties by High School Students Just Ta'

Reports of excessive drinking, smoking and wild parties among Quincy high school students, which were proved greatly exaggerated when probed by the Quincy Young People's Temperance Federation, who are sponsoring a drive to secure pledges to abstain from liquor and tobacco from the entire high school.

The Federation, made up of high school students and headed by a 17-year-old high school junior, Miss Pauline Worcester of Quincy Street, has already secured pledges from 500 boys and girls who in their drive to wipe out the "flaming youth" attitude among Quincy high school students.

'WILD PARTIES' JUST TALK

Miss Worcester, who is the daughter of a well-known Worcester, president of the Norfolk County W. C. T. U., revealed that tales of wild drinking parties led her and her friends to organize to secure pledges.

She pointed out that in the great majority of cases where the Federation has reported wild parties, they found the stories greatly exaggerated, and in many cases purely imaginative. She said many students told of parties they had attended in the hope they would appear blasé and worldly to their classmates.

She added, however, that this had done much for her organization and they planned to continue their investigations. She revealed that 100 pledges have been made to President Hoover.

OFFICIALS WON'T ACT

School officials intimated they would take no part in the matter. Headmaster Ernest L. Colfax pointed out that he would be the last person to prevent students from revealing to do better, however slight the need.

The Police Department, in addition to Miss Worcester, are: Miss Muriel Sabin, 17, a senior of Currier St.; vice-president, Miss Eleanor Byrd, 17, a junior, secretary, and Miss Margaret, 16, of Webster St.

Hoover revealed last night that in his investigations he had found one student who had owned a flask and another who had been known to it way and sign the pledge.

FUNNY HOW you can eat, and sleep, and go on living and your heart all dead.

Days passed. A week. Two weeks.

Lily Lou was so gay that Mrs. Manchester was a little alarmed. It didn't suit her. Why couldn't she be her type, and leave the other sort of thing to Maxine?

Now if she was going to turn out good and silly instead of altogether in her mind and not at all in her body, why would she look for her?

The friend of Mrs. Manchester's displeasure came to Lily Lou, finally. She didn't know what she had done, or left out, to displease her. "You dicked with her!" she thought, trying to be care-free and independent like Maxine. That was the way to get through life.

Four or five hours of it, her friends advised, and her spirit.

STOP WORRYING

Yes, and that was the trouble. When she wanted to think she didn't know. She didn't know. No use having her voice tried while she felt like this. . . . Wait. . . . Just a little longer. Don't let yourself get panicky. Don't let her go on for ever. Don't let you're lost. Stop worrying. Put your mind on Wanda book-keeping. . . .

Sometimes Lily Lou thought about it so much. She didn't know which was the worst, being book-keeper, Jan Maxine, and personal maid in the morning, or playing the piano in the afternoon.

Four or five hours of it, her friends advised, and her spirit.

APPEARING JUST AS BRIGHT AND SPARKLING AS she always does, Mrs. Malcolm Bradley greeted us the other morning at the Museum. She looked light blue wool street dress with matching turban and short jacket of black caracul, one of the smartest color combinations of the winter. After telling us how marvelously well she feels after her trip to Bermuda, she fell to recuperate from a slight illness, she chatted on about her PET subject, the Charlotte Cushman Club.

And the news was very interesting. A lecture on Eugene O'Neill's latest dramatic success, now playing in New York, "Mourning Becomes Electra," will be given by Mr. William M. Blatt, well-known lecturer, playwright and lawyer, on Tuesday morning, January 12, at 11 in the clubhouse at No. 1 Marlborough st. Coffee will be served preceding the talk at 10:30.

MRS. FENNER
For those who think this will be a discourse on electricity—and we have heard of several who did—let us hasten to add that "Mourning Becomes Electra" suggests the Greek play, "Electra," modernized. We haven't seen it, but it will be shown in Hough's Neck no doubt some time later in the season. It will be very interesting to hear all about it beforehand—we hope.

Leaders Sponsor Mr. Blatt's Lecture

AN IMPRESSIVE LIST OF PATRONESSES ARE SPONSORING this lecture, among whom are Mrs. Alvan T. Shaw, Jr., and many other prominent social lights.

Hostess at Tea

MRS. CHARLES BARNARD PRINCE, one of Boston's loveliest matrons, is giving a tea on Sunday for her daughter, Miss Justine Prince, whose engagement to Mr. Howard Elliott, Jr., of New York, was announced this week. The friends of the Prince family will have an opportunity of meeting Mr. Elliott.

Stage Success

IN PASSING, LET US MENTION that it was with real pleasure that we witnessed Felix Leada play the part of the French maid last week in "Naples at the Copoly Theatre." Miss Leada has been acting in other parts for this season and has brought to the stage a personality and charm quite her own. The French provincial costumes became well suited to her and will be seen in an entirely different kind of part this week in "The Little Celler."

Artistic Taste

WHOSOEVER THOUGHT UP the idea of this stupendous undertaking—and we imagine it was Mrs. Benjamin Pitman—showed a rare artistic sense and a generous heart. For she knows how fortunate to be able to see these tableaux as beautifully executed as we know they will be under her able direction.

THE NEW HAVEN R.R.

N.E. GOVERNORS TO AID MILK PRODUCERS

Montpelier, Vt., Jan. 8 (AP)—New England's peace loving farmers today were preparing for war to end war along the New England milk shed.

Allied in the fight to stabilize the price of milk are five New England governors, who are in prevailing low-cost prices a serious menace to the billion dollar investment in New England farms.

A recent milk war sent prices tumbling to the lowest level seen in New England since 1917. In Boston and other large marketing centers milk has sold, delivered, for 10 cents a quart and in chain stores for as low as eight. Of the five cents paid by dealers about 3 1/2 has gone to the farmer, who maintains it costs him five cents for every quart he sells.

On Monday five governors members of the advisory committee were appointed to aid the farmers and representatives of New England Dairies, Inc., will meet in the State House in Boston to launch a campaign designed to raise milk prices by the middle of the month. Connecticut is not expected to be represented by its executive.

Active in the campaign to stabilize milk prices is Dr. A. W. Gilbert, commissioner of agriculture in Massachusetts. Dr. Gilbert estimates the total valuation of dairy property in New England a mere $1,000,000,000; he averages annual income a mere $100,000,000 and average annual expenditures at $100,000,000.

STAGE LOT DAILY.
Under existing prices, Dr. Gilbert figures, New England farmers are losing $13,000 daily on the milk they ship into Boston market alone, and he sees grave danger to rural banks and merchants and the powerful purchasing power of the farmers unless the price is raised at once.

To meet the situation an all embracing cooperative marketing organization has been set up. New England Dairies, Inc., which, if it can obtain control of 85 per cent of the Boston market supply, will negotiate contracts for all its membership.

Dr. E. H. Bancroft, its president, said today it was within some six or seven per cent of the required quota.

Scientifically Purer..

Something every smoker wants to know!

● Absolutely pure... that's what you expect in the things you eat and drink... and in the cigarettes you smoke.

"Chesterfields are as pure as the water you drink," a noted scientist writes. There's no way to make a purer cigarette.

Starting with tobaccos... the ripest, finest, purest leaf that grows is selected for Chesterfields. Mild to start with... Cross-Blending makes it milder still. Then it's wrapped in paper that is so pure it burns without any taste or odor.

The phrase "Scientifically Purer" is entirely justified. By our use of a highly scientific process which was worked out by Dr. Paul Gross, the Head Chemist of our Research Department, Chesterfield reaches a state of purity unmatched, to our knowledge, by any other cigarette.

In addition, scientists check every ingredient, every method. Even the factory air is washed, and changed every 4 1/2 minutes. More purity!

Notice, too, the clean, white, attractive package... moisture-proof. Chesterfields come to you as good and as pure as they're made. Good... they've got to be good! Change to Chesterfields and see.

A WONDERFUL NEW RADIO PROGRAM

Tonight... at 10:30... Chesterfield's Radio Program. Light a Chesterfield... lean back... and relax while Nat Shilkret's Orchestra and Alex Gray, soloist, charm away your cares. It's on the entire Columbia Network... broadcast from coast to coast... every night except Sunday. And the hour's 10:30 E. S. T.

● WRAPPED IN DU PONT NO. 300 MOISTURE-PROOF CELLOPHANE, THE BEST AND MOST EXPENSIVE THAT'S MADE

THEY'RE Milder • THEY'RE Pure • THEY TASTE BETTER • They Satisfy

"Thank goodness, there's ONE question
that's easy to settle!"

LOTS of family budget problems there are at the beginning of the New Year.

But one problem requires no debate. You don't have to ask, "What gasoline and motor oil shall we buy?" You know that the money you spend with Socony will buy the best gasoline and the best motor oil at fair prices, every day, everywhere, in any city or town, at any cross-roads anywhere in New York and New England.

Socony was the first maker of gasoline and motor oil in this territory. It has had the most years of experience. Its products, Socony Banner Gasoline, Socony Special plus Ethyl, and Socony De-waxed Motor Oil, are purchased by more car owners than any other products. It has the largest number of convenient service stations.

This great enterprise is absolutely dependent upon the good-will of the automobile owners of New York and New England... upon your good-will.

To protect and increase this good-will the Standard Oil Company of New York, Inc., has built a great organization and made a tremendous investment. It cannot take chances on quality. It must make superior products. It must charge fair prices. It must give courteous, prompt, cheerful service.

You will do better for yourself and for your car if you do not buy gasoline or motor oil hit or miss. You will be much wiser to pick a brand of gasoline and motor oil, and stick to it.

We invite you to pick the brand which the greatest number of motorists in New York and New England have picked. We must keep you satisfied, and we will.
STANDARD OIL COMPANY OF NEW YORK, INC.
